

THE GREAT UN-HANGED.

By a Regular.

Let us take the road!
 Let us take the road!
 Let us take the road!
 Let us take the road!
 Let us take the road!

SOME years ago, on the capture of an eminent British burglar and highwayman (one of the noble founders of the "Gardiner family"), a brochure issued from the prolific pen of Paternoster Row, London, entitled "Murder Heroes." The aim of this trenchant irony was to satirise the morbid excitement that had been exhibited, not only by the lower, but by the middle and respectable classes, with regard to those unmitigated villains, who being about to suffer death by the laws of an offended country and of outraged society, were very speedily transformed into objects of a very misplaced, and therefore a very injurious sympathy. The degree to which dear old Mrs. MOTHER COUNTRY opened her respectable bosom, and administered the milk of human kindness to some interesting young cut-throat, some heroic footpad, some adroit prison-breaker, or some audacious marauder who was mounted on such a "spirited horse"—who had plundered so many mails, rifled so many passengers or way-laid travellers, and who was "so very good to the poor," would exceed the belief of anybody not cognizant of the fact. Nay, there have been instances where a peculiar interest has been displayed, together with many delicate attentions from pious but mistaken ladies, towards a poisoner of the deepest dye, or even to a wretch who, after murdering, had cut up, bagged, burnt, and otherwise made away with the body of his victim. Could any proceedings have been more shocking, when viewed in its proper light?—or, in its way, more really, however unconsciously, demoralising to the better feelings of society. Let the ministers of religion do their part, and, in the exercise of their functions, administer what spiritual consolations they think proper, and what personal kindnesses they consider right and soothing to a savage or evil nature, but never let society regard its monsters as objects of that interest which is only a disordered excitement causing a diseased admiration. Above all things, do not let us see the fair part of creation sending little culinary comforts, or articles of clothing prepared by their hands, or autograph letters of devout sentiment, to the hard-edged sermons, and the Psalms of David, all presented by dainty fingers to the hard-incarnadine, so lately reeking with the life-stream of a fellow creature! These are no exaggerated or high coloured statements. All these things, and many others of a similar kind, have been done in the old country—a country, moreover, which prides herself upon being so much more sedate, matter-of-fact, and less liable to be "led away by the feelings" than her continental neighbours.

In France, more especially, we all remember a great variety of popular demonstrations, tending to exalt atrocious criminals into objects of a peculiar but thrilling interest. Whenever the criminal has been a young woman, and one not of personal repulsiveness, who has chanced to escape the grasp of the law, and been once more let loose upon the community, scarcely a week has elapsed before she received an offer of marriage—sometimes two or three, from infatuated admirers who were "carried away" by the wretch's notoriety. But while in prison, and yet more so when in the condemned cell, this morbid interest has invariably been displayed. Even the attendant priests (not to mention our English gait-chaplains) have been influenced in a similar way. When the "celebrated" Madame Laffarge, the poisoner—who had given poison to biscuits to the poor, as an act of charity, distributing them to her grateful pensioners at the Hotel Dieu, and going from time to time to enquire after their health—when this diabolical woman was in the condemned cell she was regarded as a model of repentance and piety. "She was so enlightened," says the Biographie Universelle—"so enlightened with spiritual grace"—in fact, such an enviable criminal, that the chaplain who attended her, said "he wished he could have been in her place! Surely, the force of clerical compliment, under the circumstances, could no further go."

Now, the fatal day, when the renowned Captain Gardiner, the terror of the bush, the admiration of the visitors of wax-work exhibitions, the impartial stick-up, not only of self-important "stuck-up" people, but of industrious settlers and tradesmen who are so imprudent as to carry money about them while travelling through their own district, or on the Queen's highway, when at length the fatal day arrives, on which one of the most eminent of the "Australian Men of the Time,"—in short, the Great Un-hanged, is actually captured, I very much fear that the demonstrations on so important an occasion are likely to be anything but commendable on the part of very large numbers of our community. This very ungentlemanly knight-errant—this iron faced man, needing no iron mask to confront and out-face the gallant and too gentleman like Sir Frederick Pottinger—a colonial Orson, or a cavalry officer—Valentine—will, no doubt, excite an amount of interest and troubled excitement, such as have not for a long time been displayed among us; and as to his behaviour, general and particular, in the condemned cell, together with his conversation, opinions, passing remarks, confessions, last words and looks while being finally pinioned,—and the "firm step" with which he ascended the scaffold—it is much to be feared that Sydney will take the lead of the whole territory in that morbid sympathy and thrilling interest—these baleful characters have for centuries excited among the most highly civilised nations of the world.

But all these speculations may be, in a great measure, defeated in result, and despoiled of all their unhealthy effluence, by the possible accession of the Great Un-hanged continuing un-hanged to the end of the chapter! He may be shot, or knocked on the head, or dashed from his horse upon stone or stump,—and what "a fall" would that be, for all his admirers, as well as himself! Possibly, the gentleman "named in the margin" may actually die in his bed. We are led to this last speculation by learning (supposing it to be true) from the Otago Times, that the dashing rascal had contrived to make a temporary trip, or flying visit, to Switzer's diggings, and had been actually seen on the road from Invercargill. He appears to have had a pleasant chat with the man who recognised him. Captain Gardiner was very frank and communicative, and concluded by saying, by way of an easy passing remark, that he should first shoot Commissioner Brannigan! Who was to be second, and third on his list, he did not happen to mention. The last news of this cool spoken gentleman, according to the Otago Times, was that he was in the Pomahawks district, "somewhere," and that the police of the Southland force were "after him." Probably a long way after. For aught we know he may, by this time, be smoking his pipe on the taffrail of the vessel that is to bring him back to our enchanted shores.

Meanwhile, and not to allow the provinces to forget him, the influence of the "dark one" is kept up by some of his pupils, or entered-apprentices of his craft. Two of these, hearing of a wedding feast, which recently took place at the Bribery Station, suddenly presented themselves among the guests; and so great was the awe they inspired that they were actually allowed to participate in the feast!—at any rate, so far as cake and wine, and, no doubt, whatever other drink their serene highnesses fancied. We only wonder they did not salute the bride! These gentlemen may sail for England some day and get presented at Court, like Mr. Fillett!

It appears that this fascinating ruffian has secured a number of young men to enlist under his "romantic" black banner. It is difficult to credit the extent to which some of the provincial journals declare the great bush-measmerist and electro-biological bullet man has practised his successful "passes." That a few German students, and other young men of good family, or respectable parents, suddenly lost their better senses, on the publication of Schiller's well known drama, with a lofty-minded robber for its hero, of the misanthropical school of morbid philosophers, and that these young men hurried off into the gloom of the forests and rocks or recesses of the Hartz Mountains to reduce their abnormal theories to suitable practice, by waylaying travellers, and making war upon all honest, as well as dishonest, members of society, may be true enough; but that this very peculiar kind of seduction has gone so far with us, as some of our provincial contemporaries assert, requires more abundant proof, I think, and, at any rate, more examples than have yet come to light. Another feature of a still more revolting nature has been suggested as forming a part of the Great Wizard's programme, viz., that, besides turning the heads of so many young men, the accomplished and irresistible Captain, has also succeeded in enrolling some young ladies among his daring band. That the "photograph" of a Dulcinea may have been found in the pockets (nearest his heart, of course) of one of the scoundrels recently captured is, no doubt, true enough; nor do we at all discredit the story of the "young lady" who recently took an active part in one of the bushranger atrocities, and if she did not directly assist, at least, aided and abetted the errant knight before he escaped the gallows by having the good fortune to be shot. But until several more of these bad copies, in disguise, of Robin Hood are attended by a Maid Marian, (not that these brutalised creatures deserve so graceful and sylvan a comparison), can we reasonably admit that there are adequate grounds for apprehending so shocking an addition to the existing evil, as some of our contemporaries have suggested.

THE VINE IN THE MURRAY AND Ovens DISTRICTS.

(From the Federal Standard, May 16.)

In the present paper we shall give, as nearly as possible, an account of what has been done, and what is about to be done in the cultivation of the vine hereabouts—namely, in the land between the river and the border. We begin with the Murray and Ovens districts, because, owing to the presence of the steam plough, a larger breadth of vines is being planted there than anywhere else.

COROWA VINEYARD.—This is in the occupation of Mr. Sanger, and is situated upon the north bank of the Murray river. The soil is argillaceous, intermingled with limestone, having a clay subsoil; and the aspect is for the most part easterly. The vineyard comprises 7½ acres of four year old vines, and 9 acres of vines one, two, and three years old. The land was all fenced two feet deep by spade labour, and the vines are planted four feet apart, 3720 to the acre. The vines are of the following varieties: Aurore, Verdillo, Tokay, Gouais, Brown Muscatel, Shiraz, Malbec, and Grenache. The quantity of wine made was 3200 gallons, besides which, grapes were sold to the amount of 3000 lb. The yield of 500 gallons to the acre. The strength of the must was 1100, with water at 1000, and 16 to the minimum. The grapes were soaked in water until they were plump, and then were watered at 0, showed a minimum of 36. (The use of the brewer's saccharometer should be discouraged, as it is highly important that there should be only one class of instrument used in testing the strength of musts.) Mr. Sanger's vine of the previous vintage was excellent, and it all sold at 1½ p. per gallon.

WARRAGUNIA PLAIN VINEYARD.—This belongs to Mr. John Graham, and comprises 31 acres of vines planted last year. The vines are of the following varieties: Aurore, Verdillo, Tokay, Gouais, Brown Muscatel, Shiraz, Malbec, and Grenache. The land was all fenced two feet deep by spade labour, and the vines are planted four feet apart, 3720 to the acre. The vines are of the following varieties: Aurore, Verdillo, Tokay, Gouais, Brown Muscatel, Shiraz, Malbec, and Grenache. Mr. Sanger's vine of the previous vintage was excellent, and it all sold at 1½ p. per gallon.

MR. B. A. MYERS'S VINEYARD.—This is situated at Corowa, and consists of 13½ acres of Brown Muscatel, Tokay, and Shiraz. The vines are of the following varieties: Aurore, Verdillo, Tokay, Gouais, Brown Muscatel, Shiraz, Malbec, and Grenache. The land was all fenced two feet deep by spade labour, and the vines are planted four feet apart, 3720 to the acre. The vines are of the following varieties: Aurore, Verdillo, Tokay, Gouais, Brown Muscatel, Shiraz, Malbec, and Grenache. Mr. Sanger's vine of the previous vintage was excellent, and it all sold at 1½ p. per gallon.

MR. WHITEHEAD'S VINEYARD at Corowa consists of 6½ acres. Three quarters of an acre are three years old, and the remainder two years. The varieties are Aurore, Verdillo, Tokay, Gouais, Brown Muscatel, Shiraz, Malbec, and Grenache. The land was all fenced two feet deep by spade labour, and the vines are planted four feet apart, 3720 to the acre. The vines are of the following varieties: Aurore, Verdillo, Tokay, Gouais, Brown Muscatel, Shiraz, Malbec, and Grenache. Mr. Sanger's vine of the previous vintage was excellent, and it all sold at 1½ p. per gallon.

WHISKY BAY VINEYARD, belonging to Brown Brothers, is situated near Corowa. It contains 10 acres of one-year old vines of the Shiraz, Gouais, Tokay, and Aurore descriptions. This also is a fine vineyard, and was ploughed 16 inches deep by bullocks.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

(From the Illustrated London News, March 7.)

Once in a way a particular Parliament has acquired, owing to some peculiarity, a distinctive appellation, such as the Long Parliament, the Rump Parliament, and so on. The present assembly, however, is distinguished by the name of the Cambridge Police Parliament. If politeness may be defined to be a courteous deference to the mutual feelings and feelings of persons who happen to come in contact, our Legislature is by Mr. Fox, possessed of it in a high degree. Anything from a royal marriage down to the quality of an individual, suffices to postpone proceedings with business, or even initiating measures. In a body that is so much interested in the quality of public opinion, it might be said that public duty has merged into a system of personal compromise. If anything happens to get up a motion on a bill which does not seem to have any connection with the business of the day, the speaker is immediately discharged, and gets a tremor, or a Home Secretary, or an Attorney-General, or a Minister, or a Member of the House, to consent to exactly that thing; but, as nobody is so happy in Parliamentary state ought, if it is to be avoided, to get up a motion on a bill which does not seem to have any connection with the business of the day, the speaker is immediately discharged, and gets a tremor, or a Home Secretary, or an Attorney-General, or a Minister, or a Member of the House, to consent to exactly that thing; WEDNESDAY, MAY 27, 1883.

It is all probability the meeting to be held in sympathy with the North will not greatly affect the issues of the war; but still it is not an unhealthful thing for a people to give utterance to their sentiments, and for voices, however minute, or parties, however small, to make their contributions to the great volume of public opinion which is destined so largely to influence the world. Our readers must have seen from the tone and tenor of our articles upon the subject of the American war that we are greatly divided in sympathies. When we consider the character of the American Press—the fury of its denunciations against our country, the threats of invasion and bloodshed with which it teems—the insults poured by the most conspicuous of its members against all that is great and good in the British Empire, we can have no sympathy with the North. We can have no sympathy with the North, because we fully appreciate the great ideal which the people are animated in resisting the severance of their Union, and the destruction of their great Republic. All the motives which would inspire an Englishman to cling to the British connection may well act with equal power upon the people of America. Who could care for vention of Ohio: who would think with any reverence of the man who should announce himself as representative of Kansas? The Courts of Europe would certainly move with no very perceptible concern at the appearance of a diplomatist whittling his stick and squinting his tobacco-juice—however dexterously both operations might be performed. It is because the American wanted in tradition or in individual grandeur it seemed to make up by the vastness of its territory and the massing of its physical power—by its strides in the conquest of the desert and the multiplication of its ships, that it presented itself in the aggregate as something vast, overshadowing, and formidable. No one would respect the citizen of an American State as such, but the American flag and Federal name was a passport to at least respectable consideration.

There may be, too, lingering in the North a latent thought that they will make themselves terrible as well as great—that nations shall be held in some kind of apprehension by the power of a Government which, having no very clear and direct influence in Europe, may always incline to one side or the other, as may gratify the vanity of its rulers, or enable them to loom large on the universe. To sever the Union, to break it up into a number of small States, would take away this power, and the loss of ability to intimidate or to excite jealousy may, in some minds (of course not in the greatest)

It is, however, an encouraging symptom that the gentlemen among us who profess to be the great advocates of freedom are also the greatest enemies of the colored people.

are also the enemies of rebellion. With their functions are they now discouraging upon the wicked world the insurrection—the crime of resistance? They pronounce upon those men—great leaders in war and council—who have astonished Europe by their resources, because they are rebels against their Government, and because they are in arms against the unity of the Empire! We shall gather certainly some fruit from this happy manifestation of the spirit of our own citizens. We rejoice to hear them sing the song of loyalty to Government—obedience to authority and unity among the people—duties which men owe to their military and civil rights. There is no reason, however, to expect that the enemies of rebellion will be wholly gratified by the success of the American contest. It seems tolerably certain that avenger must be taken, the course quence of the war. A similar law to that which makes it impossible for England to hold her colonies in subjection against their will when they grow in strength, makes it impossible for the Northern States to hold down the warlike spirits of the South. The friends of rational liberty, however, may recover from their depression. The Northern States will still be great. They may afford for a long time the best possible field for the trial of those institutions of which they are the depositories. Surely the English Monarch has no jealousy of the American Republic. The QUEEN has no desire to abuse that form of government which was partly inevitable from the social condition of the people—that QUEEN who has quoted WASHINGTON as the character most like one to herself most beloved. M. FORBES has exquisitely said that when she dreams of the great gallery of history, where she would wish to place this loved countess, to make all the qualities admired in her husband shine out, the finest spot presented to her imagination is that where beams the serene face of the founder of the modern republic. We should wish to see America re-arrange her political institutions, and purify them, and we may do so without losing our admiration for that royalty which, in the mind of the QUEEN, has not extinguished a profound and glowing estimate of the American Republic.

When, however, we pass all these considerations to that which constitutes the great cause of the South, our sympathies for its warriors and statesmen are utterly chilled. They are indeed, are fighting for the independence of the country, but also for the enslavement of their fellow men. They have made this corner-stone of their new system the perpetuity of slavery. They have even dared to invoke the name of God in defence of the daily robbery and pillage of the beings He formed in His own image. They have not spared men as while, and as intellectual, and immortal as themselves. Whatever may be the faults of the North in reference to slavery, and it has more than most inconsistent, there is no doubt as to the purpose of the South, or that it is irreexorable. It will be doubtless defeated in a way different from that contemplated by the opponents of slavery in the North, but nevertheless the accursed institution is doomed to perish. Already we see the axe laid to the root of this baleful tree, and although it may be only "ringed" by the convulsions of this civil war, it is, in fact, doomed, its vitality assailed—its withered branches will soon betray the deadly power which is invading the trunk, and, amidst the shout and triumph of the world, DIVINE PROVIDENCE will some day or other, perhaps not remote, and it may be by the very hands of those have humbled the settler he might have pacified the natives till a fresh cause of offence arose. But the fact clearly is that the natives are not eager for peace. Their impatience for European rule has burst out. The course of the war did nothing to curb it. On the whole they were the victors. They were driven from one or two strongholds, but their retreat was very slow, and they could have kept up that kind of war for a long time. They experienced no losses, but they inflicted far more damage than they received. So far, therefore, from being subdued in spirit they have grown self-confident, and are by no means impatient of any conclusions again. If Sir GEORGE GRAY hesitates to fire the first shot, they don't. If he is not game for another brush, they are; and they have taken the most decisive means in their power not only of showing what they are, but of compelling him to recognise it. He did not respect this. He went down to Tanaraki to open peace. The natives met him resolved on war. And they have thrashed him down the gauntlet in such a fashion, that unwilling as he is to pick it up he can scarcely refuse to do so.

WELLINGTON.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

MAY 22ND.—A BALL IN HONOUR OF THE ROYAL MARRIAGE.—A public ball in honour of the marriage takes place at the Court House, on or about the 1st July proximo, in honour of the marriage of the Prince of Wales and the Princess Alexandra, and in aid of the funds of the Wellington Hospital. It must be the foremost gala night of the season, as great success and yield as large an amount to the funds of the institution.

as the former one. The Bathurst quadrille band is engaged for the occasion. The auspicious event which the ball is intended to celebrate, is one at which all too hearted and loyal subjects cannot but rejoice. Whilst speaking of the quadrilles en passant, that there are at the present time, five en-droite cases, and one en-queue case. One of the sufferers is a gold miner from Burrandong was working in a drive, when a fragment of rock, upwards of a ton in weight, fell from the roof and crashed all the top of his left foot, rendering leg-jack imminent. The other accident case is that of an elderly man whose horse was galloping down the right leg of the rider, from the knee downwards, whilst the rider's horse was in the race. Both riders are passengers, completely BRIDGE V. FENTY—The latter article still has roasting in the taud, in which it became burned immediately it sank; I leave, however, from good authority, that $10,000 is to be raised for the purpose of erecting a bridge over the Macquarrie, at this place.

CENTRAL CUMBERLAND ELECTION, FIELD OF MARS.—The man Macquarrie, who is the author of this portion of the district on Monday evening, the 26th of the month, at the public-house. About eighty or ninety electors were present. Mr. John Williams in the chair. Mr. Macquarrie explained his views on the subject of the district, police, education, and other questions, resting his claim to support upon the difference of position between himself and the electors, who already shared the confidence reposed in him by the electors of Central Cumberland. It was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that Mr. Macquarrie should be elected to represent the district, and, likewise, that a committee should be formed to secure his election, the names of the electors composing the committee being called out.

THE NEWSTONE DEMONSTRATION IN COMMEMORATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES' MARRIAGE.—A meeting of officers of the various Sunday Schools in the town of Newstone, was held at the school in the National School room. The Rev. G. C. Kemp occupied the chair. The invitation from the central committee to join the Sydney schools in the domain on the 27th inst. was read, and the meeting in unanimous conversation. While all present would have liked to have accepted the invitation, a large majority were of opinion that the distance was too great to take twelve or fifteen miles to Newstone, and that it was better to

It would be impossible to secure a sufficient number of conveyances for their use on a day when every vehicle would be in requisition. It was therefore resolved to assemble the scholars in Newtown, and to carry out the original plan of having a bonfire, and to treat them with suitable games during the day, and providing a display of fireworks in the evening. The committee meeting, which stood adjourned until the 10th inst., was held on the 11th, and the members, at the Volunteers Office, to receive the report of the collector, and for the transaction of other business. The nature of the demonstration will, of course, depend on the amount of the pecuniary assistance rendered by the inhabitants of the district. It is hoped, therefore, that the contributions will be numerous and liberal.

THE SCAR BEETLE.—In a recent issue of the Scottish Farmer the following—The scar beetle or scarabæus has been termed Acanus ovis, Scarabæus ovis, and lastly, Gerisich has Acanus. Dermatodes ovis. It is a species of mite not addicted to burrowing in the soil, but content with itself to surface, and lodging in the deeper parts of the furrows, and in the furrows of the seventh to one-third of a line in length, and one-sixth of a line in breadth. The males are one-fifth

The larvae are designed, and one-seventh of a line in breadth. The head is small, the antennae are short, and bright colour. The fore limbs are small, so strong as the hind. The head is armed with strong recurved hooks. These parasites propagate very rapidly, and the pregnant females are readily recognised from their size. The period of incubation extends over from the first to the fourth day after birth. The parasites only the outer pair of hind limbs. The fourth pair forms the third or fourth day after birth. The parasites attain their full dimensions by the eighth day. The rapacity with which scab in sheep spreads need not be a town as if we see how fast the parasites multiply. Thus, in 15 days, 10 females and 5 males are born; second generation, in 30 days, 100 females and 500 males are born; third generation, in 45 days, 1000 females and five males are born; fourth generation, 100 females and 50 males are born; fifth generation, 1,000 females and 500 males are born; sixth generation, 1,000 females and 500 males are born. The females seem to die much more rapidly than the males, and it takes about three months for a fortnight or three weeks. When the temperature is lowered seven degrees below freezing point, they die in a couple of hours. These mites, however, often look dead when in reality they are capable of acquiring new hosts. They have been found on the legs of healthy animals they congregate together, and get surrounded by a scab formed in the skin they irritate. They more readily breed and multiply in the tender skins of lambs: hence we find, when the lambs are taken from their mothers, they propagate with greatest rapidity around the lamb's

The toast was drunk amidst continued cheering. His EXCELLENCY then proposed the health of their active and efficient commanding-officer, and success to the Volunteer movement.

Colonel HAMILTON said that, as time pressed, he would not detain them by any lengthy observations, but would briefly express his thanks for the manner in which his guests had been proposed and received. He was very happy to find that they had had to-day about

He studied more men on the ground than he had before. He was glad to observe in the ranks greater steadiness than he had seen on any previous occasion. It was with much gratification he saw that there was a spirit prevailing among the Volunteers to improve themselves in every way, and he was glad to find that when they had had time the majority would be ready to take the field as enemy appear. (Cham.)

He then turned to the men and said he was likely soon to leave them, and he was anxious in saying that it would cause him a great deal of regret to do so at present. He hoped to join them in a day or longer, and to have many opportunities of drilling with them. He said he had no doubt the Volunteers would prove a very efficient branch of the service; and, amidst general cheering, concluded by again thanking the company for their services, and for having drunk his health.

Captain HARMONET proposed that the Hon. the Chief Secretary, referring to the encouragement he had afforded to the Volunteer movement, and to the facilities he had offered every facility for the performance of their duties.

Mr. COWLEY briefly returned thanks. He had felt it his duty to afford as much assistance to the Volunteer movement as it had been in his power to bestow, and he was much gratified to notice that the constant application to their military duty had not prevented them to become efficient soldiers. He hoped they would not allow their perseverance to flag, and that they would continue to be ready to take the field.

gave a good account of themselves. (Cheers.) His Excellency rose, the various corps were marched off and dismissed, and so the company dispersed.

THE LIVER.

At two o'clock in the afternoon, His Excellency Sir John Young held a levee at Government House. The number of those who availed themselves of the opportunity of paying their respects to His Majesty's representative, was scarcely so large as at the last birthday levee, in consequence, probably, of many of the Volunteers who reside out of town not having time to change their dress before the hour fixed for the presentation. Cards of entree had, as customary upon these occasions, been given to the chief members of Government, and to other gentlemen holding important positions.

BURNETT DISTRICT, QUEENSLAND.

For POSITIVE SALE, by ORDER OF THE MORTGAGEES.

That valuable PASTORAL PROPERTY known as THE DALGANGAL STATIONS, 180 miles from the shipping port of (Sydney) WIDE BAY, and 40 miles from the township of GAYNDHAM.

Terms.—One-third cash, balance by approved bills at 12 and 24 months, dated from day of sale with bank discount added, as secured on the stock and station.

MR. BREWSTER has received instructions from the MORTGAGEES to sell by public auction, at his Rooms, Squatters' Exchange, George-street, THIS DAY, the 27th of May, at 11 o'clock.

The following valuable pastoral properties in the colony of Queensland:

LOT 1.—THREE MOON CREEK—BROADWATER and MOUNT STATIONS, on the north side of the Burnett River.

THE IMPROVEMENTS at the head station consist of a house containing eleven rooms, shingled, lined, and papered throughout, with five rooms, shingled, lined, and papered, large grass paddock, stockyard, woolshed, very complete, with yards, &c. At the over-seer's station there is a large three-roomed hut, shingled; two small huts, stockyard and sheepyard. Also, eight permanent stock stations, with huts and yards at each; several running yards, and about 700 bullocks.

With these runs will be sold the following stock:—

WETHERS—Waners 2204
14 to 24 1566
4 to aged 3379

WETHERS—14 to aged 7736
RAMS 109

Total sheep, more or less, 14,775

LOT 2.—Comprising DALGANGAL, THE ISLAND, and MOUNTAIN CREEK STATIONS, on the South side of the Burnett.

GRAZING CAPABILITIES, 25,000 SHEEP.

THE IMPROVEMENTS on which are—at the head station a five-roomed cottage, 32 x 16, eight feet verandah, shingled, lined, and papered, with 12 cottages, shingled, lined, and papered, four rooms, 20 x 10, verandah; two small huts, stockyard, &c. 300 permanent out-stations, with huts and yards at each; besides which there are several lambing stations, with yards, and about 400 bullocks.

With these runs will be sold the following stock:—

WETHERS—14 to aged 1280
18 to 24 750
34 to 64 1016
Aged 1818

WETHERS—14 to aged 4858
WETHERS—Mixed sexes 2550
RAMS—Ditto ditto 67

Total sheep 10,762

CATTLE.—400 head.

A good mixed herd.

These stations adjoin the RAWBULL RIVER, and are noted in the district as being SOUND, HEALTHY SHEEP COUNTRY. They are abundantly supplied with water by never-failing creeks; the country consists of OPEN PASTURES, with undulating ridges of silver-leafed Eucalyptus. The sheep are perfectly sound, and of CATTARH having never been known on the stations. The wool is very superior, and always realizes a high figure in the London market. The property will be sold in two lots, as above described, and offers, from the extensive nature of the improvements and first-class character of sheep country, advantages which lambing ranches should not lose sight of. It is NOW in the MARKET for BONA FIDE SALE, by order of the Mortgagees.

FOR FURTHER PARTICULARS.

BOLIVIAN, OR UPPER PERUVIAN GUANO.—
From Peru. This guano has been extremely rare and large quantities, Mauritius, and elsewhere, with great success. The large quantities of this guano contain much more highly applicable to poor or exhausted lands. Its peculiar property is to produce a greater weight of grain and roots instead of the exaggerated growth of foliage and straw produced by the more exciting or stimulating guano. It is held in great high estimation at Mauritius that 10,000 tons were used there last year. It is sold in the following prices:
Price, £10 10s. at the store, or delivered at the wharf in Sydney or Adelaide, at £11 6s.—little more than half the price of the best Guano for Peruvian guano.
B. B. NICHOLSON and CO., 5, Elizabeth-street, Melbourne.

FOR SALE, the well-known Station of Simsbury, near the mouth of the River, containing 10,000 acres of land, 2000 of which are cleared, and the balance in native grass, and celebrated for the superiority of the cattle raised there, and sent to market from it. There are about 5000 head of cattle, and the stock is well given to the quality of the cattle bred here, and no expense spared to secure first-class stock, and the brand W over it is well known and the cattle are in great demand in the West of Wales markets. The improvements are very extensive, all of the first class, and in thorough repair. Inspection of the property can be had on application to Mr. J. W. South, of the firm of NICOL, McE, Ballindine, or to GILCHRIST, WAIT, and Co., Sydney.

QUEENSLAND.
MIDLAND DISTRICT, THE KONGA RIVER.
together with about 5000 CHOICE WELL-BRED CATTLE.

MORT and CO. have been instructed to dispose of by private sale that well-known real-estate cattle property, MONDURAN, comprising seven blocks of rich country, on the Kolan River, and with a fine view of the Kolan Ranges. 5000 CHOICE WELL-BRED CATTLE. It is situated about equidistant from the ports of Maryborough and Gladstone. 25 MILES OF THE SHIPPING PORT OF BAFFLE CREEK. Where there is a boiling-down establishment. The country cannot be surpassed for its fatting qualities, and the rain is capable of CARRYING 12,000 to 12,000 HEAD. The improvements consist of cross-farms and other necessary dwellings, stores, &c.; also extensive stockyards, with all the recent improvements for working a large herd of cattle, and all several miles of paddock fencing. MORT and CO. can confidently recommend Monduran as one of the BEST STOCKING PROPERTIES in the BURNETT DISTRICT, and are prepared to furnish fullest particulars to intending purchasers. The soil is fertile, the reputation, and the cattle bear a high character. THE ORIGINAL STOCK were WELL-SELECTED, the best bulls have always been used, and the herd has always been well looked after.

BURNETT RIVER—QUEENSLAND. That far-famed pastoral property TOO GILBOA, TOO GILBOA, TOO GILBOA, 20,000 SHEEP, WARRANTED SOUND, AND NEVER DISBURSED, 55 miles from the shipping port of Maryborough.

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by private contract the above well-known sheep property.

it consists of seven blocks of 100 acres each, in the DEGLDLO COUNTRY, the most fascinating character, intersected by the Degllo, Tawah, and Choway creeks, with their tributaries, and, in some places, by the sea.

THE SHEEP have a high character, as reference to the prices always obtained for the DGL wool will show.

THE IMPROVEMENTS are accord to none on any station in the Northern District, and comprise two comfortable dwelling-houses, one of which is built of stone, and the other of wood, with several over-sea rooms, out offices, &c. Wooded with lawns and draffing yards attached; a stock yard, milking yard, men's huts, stables, sheds, a garden stocked with choice fruit and trees, and about four acres sown in various paddocks.

There are 12 permanent out-stations, with a hut and yard attached to each.

THE DEGLDLO is known to be one of THE MOST PAYING SQUATTING PROPERTIES in the colony. In proof thereof it is only necessary to adduce that it has been in the hands of the present owners since 1848, and is to be disposed of now on the most advantageous terms.

THE DEGLDLO is a most efficient working order, and intending purchasers are solicited to inspect it and judge for themselves.

MOBT and CO. are prepared to furnish the fullest particulars and have only to add that the high character of both country and stock, the extent and value of the improvements, and the proximity to a shipping port, all combine to make the property to be looked upon as a most profitable and desirable investment.
